Master's degree Social and Solidarity Economics Integration and Social and Solidarity Entrepreneurship

Institut Francilien d'ingénierie des Services (IFIS)

Master M2

TO GET THERE

The Integration and Social and Solidarity Entrepreneurship programme is open to students who have completed four years of higher education, i.e. who have earned 180 credits. Lifelong learning applicants who do not have this level of training may still be admitted through the validation of professional experience process.

The selection process takes place in two stages: pre-selection on the basis of application, followed by an admission interview, after which a panel of judges decides whether or not to admit the pre-selected candidates.

ACQUIRED SKILLS

The course is designed to build students' skills in the development of organisations for integration through economic activity (integration companies; intermediary associations; temporary professional integration companies; neighbourhood associations, integration workshops) and, more generally, socially beneficial solidarity companies (French SSE law).

These skills include:

- 1) general skills for understanding the economic, legal and political environment of these organisations,
- 2) management skills (creating dashboards, financial monitoring, using management indicators, HR management),
- 3) social development skills (area-specific knowledge of audiences, identifying new markets with a social dimension, implementing public and solidarity funding, supporting people, etc.).

YOUR FUTURE CAREER

At the end of this Master's, graduates can apply for the following jobs:

- Senior executives of integration through economic activity organisations
- Senior executives of socially beneficial solidarity companies
- Integration project managers in organisations for integration through economic activity or local government
- Social and solidarity economy officer in local government or social and solidarity economy networks

BENEFITS OF THE PROGRAM

The course is part of the Social and Solidarity Economy Chair at Université Gustave Eiffel, which fosters multiple partnerships with actors in the field through research and multiple events such as researcher-actor meetings and its Videos of Solidarity-Based Alternatives festival. The course is a work-study programme, open to apprenticeships and lifelong learning.
